To whom it may concern.....

I have been creating music since 1979 when I first picked up an instrument. I have made over 20 albums with countless guest appearances...I also have made several Films and done many TV appearances...

I recently contributed to the DARKYRA BLACK PROJECT as a bassist and I did so because I was impressed not only by the sound and the material but the whole professionalism of the approach. In a shattered (apparently) industry, this project highlights the endless talent and professional approach that still abounds.

The industry may have changed somewhat due to digital progression but the actual and very real talent exposed here, shows that it is in the 'end format' where problems may lie and not in the limit of extreme talent available.

I have been connected (and still am) to many top booking agents, labels and I myself have managed for some years now and will use all my connections to assist and further this project a I know it is something that needs to be exported to the wider stage and audience.

I am proud to have my name associated to this and feel bigger and better things are to come..

Yours sincerely,

Tony Dolan (The Demolition man)
